

Moving to the front

Underline the adverbial in each sentence.

Rewrite the sentence with the adverbial at the beginning.

1. She crept along the corridor as quietly as possible.

2. There were hundreds of stalls at the fair.

3. We go to the farmers' market on Saturdays.

4. There's a traffic jam on the motorway every morning.

5. He cut out the shapes as carefully as possible.

6. I watched the fireworks from my bedroom window.

7. The boy ran down the lane as if his life depended on it.

8. He poured out the drinks without a single spill.

Moving to the front

Underline the adverbial in each sentence.

Rewrite the sentence with the adverbial at the beginning.

She crept along the corridor as quietly as possible.

As quietly as possible, she crept along the corridor.

There were hundreds of stalls at the fair.

At the fair, there were hundreds of stalls.

We go to the farmers' market on Saturdays.

On Saturdays, we go to the farmers' market.

There's a traffic jam on the motorway every morning.

Every morning, there's a traffic jam on the motorway.

or Every morning on the motorway, there's a traffic jam.

He cut out the shapes as carefully as possible.

As carefully as possible, he cut out the shapes.

I watched the fireworks from my bedroom window.

From my bedroom window, I watched the fireworks.

The boy ran down the lane as if his life depended on it.

As if his life depended on it, the boy ran down the lane.

He poured out the drinks without a single spill.

Without a single spill, he poured out the drinks.