

Moon Party Reveller Information

- 20th July 1969 was declared a holiday by President Nixon. ‘Moon Day’ allowed all Americans to watch the astronauts land on the moon.
- To celebrate, many Americans held or went to ‘Moon Parties’.
- At moon parties friends and families could get together to watch the moon landings on television.
- The landing was heavily anticipated and people were really excited.
- Some people dressed up as aliens for the moon parties, excited and intrigued by what the astronauts might find on the moon.
- That evening lots of people were out on the streets partying. There was a great atmosphere, it was like the moon landing had made everyone closer.
- All my friends had tears in their eyes when we watched Armstrong take his first steps onto the moon. It was a great moment in the history of mankind and it made us feel really proud to be American.
