

Temple runners

It was a normal day in the temple for the King and Queen. They were just eating their breakfast and then suddenly they heard a loud banging sound. Without warning there was a puff of smoke coming from the entrance of the temple. "Who could it be?" Questioned the Queen to the King. The King replied "it could be the tribe from the forest!!!" The Queen replied in a scare tone "i think it is we must be being robbed."

They could see the robbers but they couldn't make out who they were. The Guards rushed in to the temple and all of them said "what is the matter" " we are being robbed" said the King.

The Guards chased the the robbers, swarming them like bees. In a fight to stop the robbers the guards got their bow and arrows out and shot them down. They were fearlessly trying to steal the crown jewels within the temple. The Guards courageously fort the robbers and protected the King and Queens belongings.

The King and Queen rewarded the guards by knighting them. The guards were so happy, they couldn't thank them anymore. The king and Queen were so grateful that they had every thing safe and untouched within the temple.
