

2019 summer holiday Dorset

Hi today was awesome it was so fun we found some great crystals and something unbelievable it was so surprising and amazing. So we are still on are holiday to Dorset I woke up to a lovely day so we had breakfast.

Then later we headed off to the beach we had already had lunch and were looking around in an amazing fossil shop we were given some money for the trip. The shop was amazing there were so many hard choices I got a few crystals and one or two fossils. We decided to get some equipment so we could go fossil hunting and try and find some crystals. We got two little hammers, two pairs of protective goggles and two little brushes.

Satisfied with what we had we headed off to the beach to look for crystals there was a good place for crystals nearby and we would go to a different beach tomorrow to find fossils. We found a good spot where we were alone we started looking for the right kind of rock, we had been given some advice to look for round rocks and if we knocked them and there was an echo it would be the right kind of rock. So I started looking around jumping from rock to rock like a mountain goat whenever I thought I found a good rock I would call who ever had the hammer over so they could crack it open to see what was inside.

It had been a while and every one was getting tired we would need to go soon so that we would not have to drive home in dark. I we had found quite a few crystals I decided I would go and have one last look and I am glad I did. Jumping over rocks I was about to give up then I looked down and there it was an aminite bigger than I had ever seen it was bigger than a dog! It was beautiful it was so detailed sticking out of a creamy rock, 'Mum, Dad, Felix, Leo!' I called excited about the amazing sight it was immense it was breath taking. Out of all the things I thought I could find and there was lots I never thought I would find this it was unimaginable and unbelievable and how I had found it the chance it was amazing. But sadly I new it would have to stay there but still amazed we took some pictures and headed of.
